Step 9: References

This PDF explains Step 9 of the step-by-step instructions that will help you correctly format your ETD to meet UCF formatting requirements.

Provided you use the format consistently and accurately throughout, UCF allows you to use any particular reference style guide you choose, including APA, MLA, Chicago, IEEE, Turabian or a journal format.

However, in all cases, you should choose one consistent style of spacing for reference entries:

1) Single-space references with an extra single-space between citations;

OR

2) Double-space references with no extra space between entries. The following help file offers instructions on how to create the hanging indent common to many reference styles.

Step 9 will show you how to format hanging indents for single or double-spaced entries.

Please Note: This is NOT a guide to use of individual reference styles, like APA or MLA. Please consult the University Writing Center, the UCF Library or your department’s preferred style guide for that help.
Formatting Hanging Indents (Single-spaced entries, extra single-space between entries)

- Go to the REFERENCES page. Click and highlight all of your references.
- Right click on the highlighted area: it will bring up a menu.
- Select Paragraph...
Another menu box will appear:

You should not need to change tabs at any point; the main concern is Indentation and Spacing. In the Indentation section, find “Special:.”

- Click on the arrow next to (none) under “Special:” and select “Hanging” from that list.
The preview box below should reflect the hanging indent.

- Then, click on the arrow under Line Spacing: and select “Single” from that list.

- Make sure the choice “Don’t add space between paragraphs of the same style” is checked.

- Last, go under Spacing and in the “After:” section, select 12 pt.

- Hit OK.

All references should change to reflect this and look like the example above.

Formatting Hanging Indents (Double-spaced entries, no extra space between entries)

- Go to the REFERENCES page. Click and highlight all of your references.

- Right click on the highlighted area: it will bring up a menu.
• Select Paragraph...

A menu will appear:

You should not need to change tabs at any point; the main concern is Indentation and Spacing. In the Indentation section, find “Special:” – it will have a drop-down menu beneath it.
• Click on the arrow next to (none) under Special: and select “Hanging” from that list.

The preview box below should reflect the hanging indent.

• Make sure that under Spacing: the Before and After sections are set to 0pt, and the Spacing is Double.

• Make sure the choice “Don’t add space between paragraphs of the same style” is checked.

• Hit OK.

All references should reflect the changes made and look like the second example above.
